

2024-25 New South Wales Budget

18 June 2024

On Tuesday 18 June 2024, Treasurer the Hon Daniel Mookhey MLC - delivered the 2024-25 NSW State Budget.

The Minns' Government's budget is set in an environment where household budgets are under pressure. Inflation has continued to ease over the past year but remains too high. Growth in the price of essentials continues to outstrip discretionary items. Inflation, increasing mortgage repayments, and tax bracket creep are all straining household budgets.

In this budget, Labor continues its plans to remove the wages cap, reform tolls, provide further support to first-home buyers, build new and better public schools and hospitals, speed up the rollout of renewables, rebuild rural and regional roads, help small businesses, and manage the State's debt.

Budget Outlook

Inflation has continued to ease over the past year, easing pressure on interest rates and helping to address cost-of-living pressures. However, inflation remains high with growth in the price of essentials continuing to outstrip discretionary items. Elevated inflation, high interest rates and tax bracket creep have offset the strong growth in labour income over the last year, curbing household spending. This has seen domestic economic growth slow sharply on a per capita basis.

The 2024-25 Budget projects a deficit of $3.6 billion in 2024-25, down from the $0.5 billion surplus projected in the 2023-24 Half-Yearly Review. Changes to GST relativities, weaker payroll tax, and higher depreciation and interest costs have contributed materially to this deterioration, alongside essential new funding to alleviate cost-of-living pressures and rebuild essential services.

Across the forward estimates, deficits are projected to reduce. The Government is expected to return to a net cash operating surplus in 2024-25, for the first time in three years. Since the 2023-24 Half-Yearly Review, total general government sector revenue is forecast to be $5.1 billion higher over the four years to 2026-27 as the reduction in GST and payroll tax revenue is netted out by improved stamp duty and land tax projections.

Total general government sector expenses are projected to increase from $120.5 billion in 2023-24 to $129.1 billion in 2027-28, growing at an average rate of 1.7 per cent per year, well below the average expense growth from 2018-19 to 2022-23 of 9.7 per cent.
